FERRY SINKS; SIX DROWN

5,000 PASSENGERS
IMPERILLED WHEN
BOAT IS ENGULFED

Home-Goers Thrown In Panic—Many Soaked
By Sudden Wave

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Death clutched at 5,000 homeward bound ferry passengers here and today is believed to have dragged six of them beneath the waves of San Francisco Bay.

Out of a maze of conflicting reports this was the conviction of federal and state investigators as they opened a searching investigation today into the tragedy that nearly overwhelmed the Key System Ferry Peralta last night.

Jammed with chatting thousands bound for the supper tables of a thousand East Bay homes, the Peralta suddenly plunged deep into the tide-racked depths off Goat Island, a mile from her Oakland slip.

A crashing wave of salty foam engulfed the forward end of the ship. Thirty men and women, it is believed, were engulfed and hundreds more, soaked by the surging wash of waters, screamed and fought in panic to escape the doom threatened.

But the Peralta righted, sloshed off the tons of water that swept half-way through the lower deck space, and staggered to a stop as rescuers fumbled in clumsy haste to launch lifeboats.

Exactly what happened no one seems to know.

Baffled by a shroud of mystery thrown over the whole affair investigators throughout the night were able to gain little more than the jumbled, fear-distorted tales of survivors.

On an official statement, issued by the Key system, that only fourteen of twenty persons known to have been in the water are accounted for is today's presumption based that six are missing, perhaps drowned.

SHERMAN GETS PEN SENTENCE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 18.—William J. Sherman, Dayton salesman, today was completing his first day behind penitentiary walls. Late yesterday he pleaded guilty to robbing the state bank of New Carlisle of $1,500 after a special Clark County grand jury indicted him twenty-four hours after the robbery.

His sentence was twenty years. The license number of the bandit coupe was taken Thursday after the robbery. Police arrested Sherman a few hours later and recovered the money as he drove to the garage at his home.

Sherman told police he needed money to care for his wife and two-year-old daughter.

CHAMBERLIN OFF ON LECTURE TOUR

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Clarence Chamberlin, transatlantic flyer, left here at 7:30 a. m. today in a Sperry messenger bi-plane for Macon, Ga., on the second leg of his flying lecture tour. He said he might stop at Philadelphia and Washington.

Chamberlin left here during a heavy snowstorm, when visibility was very bad.

The plane has been reconstructed, and equipped with new wings which he said will permit him to land at thirty miles an hour and will increase ten miles an hour the speed of the plane.

Chamberlin's itinerary includes Savannah, Tampa, Havana, Coral Gables, Palm Beach, Glades, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Louisville, and Portsmouth, Ohio. He expects to complete the tour in five weeks.

FLAPPER IS LATEST DRY LAW VIOLATOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The flapper rum-runner is the latest variety of prohibition law violator that has been called to the attention of the federal dry office.

Reports today showed that a considerable number of young women, short-skirted, bobbed-haired and wearing fur coats, are smuggling liquor into the country along the Canadian border. They are employed by smugglers on a commission basis, furnished with high powered automobiles and so far have been fairly successful in eluding the border patrol. The practice is said to be most prevalent in the Detroit sector.

MISSING HEIRESS TRACED

BROADWAY WILL SEE FOY'S LAST CURTAIN CALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Stage folk say the greatest comedian is at heart the greatest tragedian—if so, Broadway should weep freely today when Eddie Foy comes home.

Eddie, who reigned on the American stage for years and years as the greatest clown of them all, returns in death to be laid at rest not so far from the lights of the Great White Way—at New Rochelle.

Accompanied by Mrs. Foy and six of "the seven little Foy's," the actor's body was scheduled to arrive at Pennsylvania station, and crossing over Broadway, will be transferred through the Grand Central to a New Rochelle train.

It will be among his old neighbors at the Foyer, Eddie's residence, funeral mass for the actor, who died Thursday in Kansas City, may not be sung before Tuesday.

Bryan Foy, "the seventh little Foy," is expected to arrive late Monday from Hollywood, where he is a director and scenario writer.

Father Pasquale Manzoli, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church at New Rochelle, and a personal friend of the deceased, probably will conduct the last rites.

The Lambs, Friars and Players Clubs, the Catholic Actors Guild, the National Vaudeville Association and the Elks plan to be at the obsequies.

One of the Lambs said:

"When Eddie takes his last curtain call there will be a bigger turnout of the profession than ever accorded any other star."

BELIEVE GIRL SEEN IN CALIFORNIA WAS VANISHED STUDENT

Suspicious Actions Support New Clew To Smith Girl

CHICO, Cal., Feb. 18.—The search for Frances St. John Smith, missing New York heiress and Smith College student, turned with startling abruptness to Chico, Cal., today.

Three men, who observed a girl in or about the Southern Pacific depot here, declared they are positive she answers the description of the titian-haired beauty who vanished January 13 and has been the object of a nation-wide hunt ever since.

The girl they describe as nervous and very much upset when she observed a newspaper photograph of Mrs. St. John Smith, mother of the missing co-ed, bought a ticket for Sacramento in an electric depot late yesterday.

She alighted from a Southern Pacific train, idled around the room and told curious attendants she was waiting for her husband, "C. M. Lee." Later she asked the way to the stage depot, but finally purchased an electric line ticket.

Whether or not she took the train could not be established.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 18.—A check of hotels here failed to disclose a trace of Frances St. John Smith, missing co-ed reported to have bought a ticket for Sacramento in Chico late yesterday.

Trainmen to the Sacramento Northern electric line were being questioned to check a report that she may have boarded a Sacramento bound train.

DRY ENFORCERS NOT TO ABANDON SEARCH WARRANT FOR HOMES

Resort To Revenue Law Only To Get Public Places.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Prohibition authorities have no intention of invading private homes or starting a war against home brewers and wine makers, it was explained at the treasury today following announcement by Assistant Secretary Seymour Lowman that dry raids can legally be made without search warrants under the internal revenue laws.

Lowman's statement gave rise to the report that the government planned abandonment entirely of the use of search warrants and intended to make dry raids indiscriminately on mere suspicion of law violations.

The new system will be applied only to commercial bootleggers, distillers, night clubs and speakeasies. It is the opinion of legal advisors to the prohibition office that raids on these establishments do not necessitate search warrants.

This revolutionary change in enforcement policy is expected to rouse the ire of congressional wets, who already have assailed the prohibition authorities for alleged invasion of the sanctity of the home.

Within the last few days dry officials have made a formal apology to the Rumanian minister for a raid conducted in New York, while a dry agent has been tried at Baltimore for murder as the result of a killing that occurred during a raid where no search warrant was used.

PLAN MEMORIAL FOR LEONARD WOOD

BALTIMORE, Feb. 18.—The first memorial to Gen. Leonard Wood, who died last fall while serving as major-general of the Philippines, was authorized today by Major-General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States Army.

In an address before a luncheon of the Leonard Wood Memorial Association, General Summerall announced that Secretary of War Davis has authorized changing the name of Camp Meade, Maryland, to "Port Leonard Wood."

"General Wood so typified the best military characteristics that his name should be kept continuously in the minds of our officers," Summerall said.

ALLEGED SLAYER S IN CANADA LEFT BAD CHECKS IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18.—After Donalds suddenly took leave from fleeing from Montreal where, they murdered a taxicab driver last summer, George McDonald and his wife, Doris Palmer McDonald, now awaiting death on the gallows in Butte, the Canadian City, came here and passed worthless checks and counterfeit securities, secret service agents revealed today.

Government agents became aware of the counterfeiting activities when imitation government drafts were passed in New York. The Mc-

ALLEGED MURDERER AND PAL

LEREY REISER
Leroy Reiser, 29, Circleville and Paul Sheridan, alias Paul Setters, 35, Columbus, did not realize what trouble they were getting themselves into when they robbed the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley physician Wednesday.

PAUL SHERIDAN
Both were charged with possessing narcotics and grand larceny following their arrest. Later Reiser was accused of a Birmingham, Ala., murder and Setters was removed to the jurisdiction of federal court to face a drug trafficking charge.

MURDER SUSPECT TO BE TAKEN SATURDAY FROM COUNTY JAIL

Faces Columbus Quiz—Companion Taken To Dayton

Leroy Reiser, 29, Circleville, O., was to be taken from the county jail here Saturday afternoon to Birmingham, Ala., to face a charge of murdering Mrs. Lucy Leahy there in February, 1927.

Reiser, held here since Wednesday on charges of grand larceny and possessing narcotics, was to be taken to Birmingham by a detective from that city who arrived here Saturday with extradition papers from Governor Bibb Graves.

A Columbus detective, who also came here Saturday, will accompany the Birmingham officer and his prisoner.

Columbus, where Reiser will be questioned in connection with the murder of a Columbus druggist a year ago during a hold-up. After the questioning the detective will start to Birmingham with his prisoner from Columbus.

Reiser is accused of arranging Mrs. Leahy in her apartment, robbing her of $175 in cash and a diamond ring, which was later recovered in Chattanooga, Tenn. The charge against Reiser is based on an alleged confession he is said to have made ten months ago to a man arrested recently in Birmingham for pay roll robbery.

The alleged robbery has been promised immunity for the information furnished in the Leahy murder and he identified Reiser here Thursday when brought here in custody of Marvin Garver, Birmingham detective.

Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, who has admitted to authorities that his correct name is Paul Setters, was removed to the jurisdiction of federal court at Dayton, Friday afternoon by Mont Spillman, deputy U. S. Marshal. Setters and Reiser were captured by Waynesville officers and a posse of Spring Valley citizens Wednesday after they had robbed the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley physician.

Dental gold valued at between $400 and $500, believed to have been stolen, a revolver, hypodermic equipment and narcotics were found in their possession. Charges of grand larceny and narcotic possession filed against them here will probably be dropped in favor of the federal narcotic charge against Setters and the murder charge against his companion.

Reiser has been kept in ignorance of the murder charge against him and other prisoners in the county jail fretted because they had no newspapers Friday evening. Sheriff Ohmer Tate kept paper.

In his ruling, Judge Lones cited an "exactly similar case, which was taken to the Ohio Supreme Court."

"I fully realize my duty to the state and defense in addition to my sworn duty, but in the face of the decision of the supreme court in an exactly similar case, I must rule that the previous testimony may not be used at this trial," Judge Lones said.

"My idea of a fair trial is that the court should be lenient in admitting testimony. It is not for me, a common pleas judge, to say the supreme court is wrong. At some later date the supreme court may reverse its previous ruling, but until that time the testimony of a witness at a previous trial can be admitted only if he is dead."

Special Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, shortly before Judge Lones' ruling declared the state's case would be dealt a "mortal blow" unless Streitenberger's testimony was admitted.

In refusing to testify at the present session, Streitenberger based his stand on "private reasons." The prosecution Friday had called Florence Travis, court stenographer at Lengel's first trial, in an attempt to authenticate Streitenberger's previous testimony.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 18.—J. Randolph Brewer, federal prohibition agent, was freed of murder charges today which grew out of the killing of Charles V. Gundlach, 71-year-old Maryland farmer, during a raid on the farm.

A jury in federal court returned a verdict of not guilty after deliberating thirty-seven minutes. Charges against three other agents will be dismissed as a result of the verdict.

Brewer and the federal government contended that Gundlach was shot in the course of duty and in self-protection. The state of Maryland, on the other hand, contended, and introduced evidence to show, that Brewer and Gundlach were bitter personal enemies, and that Brewer had sworn to "get" the aged farmer. The state contended Brewer was a former moonshiner himself.

SEEKING RECORD

IMPERIAL, Cal., Feb. 18.—"The giant monoplane 'Albatross' took the air at 6:54 a. m. today in an attempt to wrest the world's endurance flight record from Germany. It was the second start within a week for Pilots Alvin K. Peterson and Charles F. Rochelle of the Zenith Aircraft Corporation, and Jack Reid of San Diego, Cal., navy officer on leave of absence.

REGRET HAUNTS GIRL'S MOTHER

GAVE HER BABY DAUGHTER OUT FOR ADOPTION, WANTING HER TO HAVE A GOOD HOME AND FINE CLOTHES

TODAY—IS UNDER SENTENCE FOR ROBBERY AND MURDER AND IS SENTENCED TO BE HANGED

Mrs. Michael Grecco

By IONE QUINBY
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette
CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—"I realize now that mother arms and poverty are a far better combination for one's child than adoption and riches, but 20 years ago I thought differently. I was desperately poor, and I wanted my baby to have a good home with pretty clothes and a chance to be somebody. I gave her out for adoption, thinking I was being kind to her, although it nearly broke my heart. And now—after 20 years—she is going to be hanged!"

Clasping her arms again and again, Mrs. Michael Grecco sits in a room at the Cook County Jail.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF WEALTHY SHIP AND COAL BARON

Police Suspect Foul Play In Death Of R. L. Ireland, Relative Of Mark Hanna—Medical Examiner Says "Suicide"

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Mystery today surrounded the death of Robert Livingston Ireland, 60, wealthy ship owner and "coal baron," in his apartment here. Ireland was related to Mark Hanna, former U. S. senator and campaign manager of President McKinley.

Although the medical examiner pronounced the case a suicide, detectives suspected foul play. They pointed out that five bullets entered Ireland's body and that he would have had to use his left hand to pull the trigger. The shots appeared to have been deflected downward from the left collarbone in the direction of the heart.

Two revolvers were found on a dresser at the foot of the bed upon which Ireland was lying. One revolver had not been used recently.

The body was found by the victim's wife, Mrs. Esther Wood Ireland, upon her return from a shopping trip. She told detectives her husband might have killed himself, but could not advance any reason for his act except the fact that he had been despondent because of heart trouble during the past year.

Police were puzzled because Ireland left no farewell note. They expressed the opinion that if he had contemplated suicide, he would have written such a note to his wife or to his children, Robert L. Ireland, Jr., and Elizabeth Ireland of Cleveland, O.

In 1894 Ireland married Kate Benedict Hanna, niece of Mark Hanna and the couple was divorced a year before his marriage to Miss Wood.

In 1903 he resigned his shipping post to become a member of the Cleveland firm of M. A. Hanna and Co.

FLIGHT POSTPONED
FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 18.—Unfavorable winds this morning caused another postponement of the proposed attempt of Al Henley and Joe Hart, Oklahoma aviators, to bring to the United States the world's flight endurance record now held by German aviators.

JURY SELECTION FOR HICKMAN SLOW WORK

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.—The joint trial of William Edward Hickman and Welby Hunt, his former partner in crime, for the slaying of C. Ivy Thoms, marked time today with a jury still incomplete.

After defense attorneys had exercised twenty-one of their allotted thirty peremptory challenges and state's attorneys had used five of their twenty, five women and seven men sat as tentative jurors when Superior Judge Elliott Craig yesterday adjourned court until Monday morning.

The chief obstacles to the selection of a jury to sit in judgment on the youthful pair, it was pointed out today, is the widespread prejudice against Hickman because of his conviction for the kidnapping and killing of 12-year-old Marion Parker.

ALLEGED MURDERER AND PAL

LEROY REISER, 29, Circleville, O., was to be taken from the county jail here Saturday afternoon to Birmingham, Ala., to face a charge of murdering Mrs. Lucy Leahy there in February, 1927.

Reiser, held here since Wednesday on charges of grand larceny and possessing narcotics, was to be taken to Birmingham by a detective from that city who arrived here Saturday with extradition papers from Governor Bibb Graves.

A Columbus detective, who also came here Saturday, will accompany the Birmingham officer and his prisoner. Columbus, where Reiser will be questioned in connection with the murder of a Columbus druggist a year ago during a hold-up. After the questioning the detective will start to Birmingham with his prisoner from Columbus.

Reiser is accused of strangling Mrs. Leahy in her apartment, robbing her of $175 in cash and a diamond ring, which was later recovered in Chattanooga, Tenn. The charge against Reiser is based on a confession he is said to have made ten months ago to a man arrested recently in Birmingham for pay roll robbery. The alleged robber has been promised immunity for the information as furnished in the Leahy murder and he identified Reiser here Thursday when brought here in custody of Marvin Garver, Birmingham detective.

Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, who has admitted to authorities that his correct name is Paul Setters, was removed to the jurisdiction of federal court at Dayton, Friday afternoon by Mont Spillman, deputy U. S. Marshal. Setters and Reiser were captured by Wayneville officers and a posse of Spring valley citizens Wednesday after they had robbed the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley physician.

Dental gold valued at between $400 and $500, believed to have been stolen, a revolver, hypodermic equipment and narcotics were found in their possession. Charges of grand larceny and narcotic possession filed against them here will probably be dropped in favor of the federal narcotic charge against Setters and the murder charge against his companion.

Reiser has been kept in ignorance of the murder charge against him and other prisoners in the county jail fretted because they had no newspapers Friday evening. Sheriff Ohmer Tate kept papers from the prisoners in the fear that Reiser would attempt suicide if he learned of the serious accusation against him.

When Sheriff Tate refused a request of Columbus police Friday to bring Reiser to that city to be questioned in connection with the Columbus murder, detectives said they would come to this city Friday night, but failed to do so. Any charge developed against him there would have to await disposition of the Birmingham case. Federal authorities waived a prior claim on Reiser on the narcotic charge to permit him being taken to Birmingham to face the murder charge.

COURT BARS STREITENBERGER
TESTIMONY FROM PRIOR TRIAL

Lengel Will Probably Learn Fate At Second Trial Early Next Week—Former Detective Remains Silent

LISBON, O., Feb. 18.—Sarasus A. Lengel, former Canton police chief, on trial a second time for alleged participation in the Don R. Mellett murder plot at Canton, in 1926, may know his fate early next week.

Following a ruling by Judge W. F. Lones here late Friday, testimony of Floyd A. Streitenberger, admitted in Lengel's first trial at Canton, cannot be used at the present session, court was adjourned until Monday, when the state is expected to rest its case after calling three or four additional witnesses. The defense then will make a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal, it was predicted.

Streitenberger, former Canton detective, under a life sentence to the Ohio penitentiary for complicity in the Mellett slaying, has refused to testify in the present trial. His testimony at Lengel's first trial was generally believed to have been responsible for the verdict of guilty against the white-haired ex-chief, which resulted in Lengel being sentenced to life. The seventh district court of appeals reversed the lower court, however.

In his ruling, Judge Lones cited an "exactly similar case, which was taken to the Ohio Supreme Court." "I fully realize my duty to the state and defense in addition to my sworn duty, but in the face of the decision of the supreme court in an exactly similar case, I must rule that the previous testimony may not be used at this trial," Judge Lones said.

"My idea of a fair trial is that the court should be lenient in admitting testimony. It is not for me, a common pleas judge, to say the supreme court is wrong. At some later date the supreme court may reverse its previous ruling, but until that time the testimony of a witness at a previous trial can be admitted only if he is dead."

Special Prosecutor C. D. McClintock, shortly before Judge Lones' ruling, declared the state's case would be dealt a "mortal blow" unless Streitenberger's testimony was admitted.

In refusing to testify at the present session, Streitenberger based his stand on "private reasons." The prosecution Friday had called Florence Travis, court stenographer at Lengel's first trial, in an attempt to authenticate Streitenberger's previous testimony.

MOTHER SAYS SON VICTIM OF ENEMIES

NICE, FRANCE, Feb. 18.—William Barton French, son of a former partner in the J. P. Morgan Company, did not commit suicide but was killed as an act of revenge by his enemies, his mother, Mrs. Seth Barton French declared today.

French was found dead in the home of a friend recently at Santa Fe, New Mexico. He was pronounced a suicide by the police.

Mrs. French is recuperating at her villa at Rocca Marineville from a severe illness brought about by her son's death. She believes French did not take his own life and blames prohibition for the entire incident.

Mrs. French declared her opinion was upheld by the fact that when her son lived in France, surrounded by every temptation, he led a straight and sober life.

But she said, when French returned to America, he drank heavily with enemies all about him.

MURDER SUSPECT TO BE TAKEN SATURDAY FROM COUNTY JAIL

Faces Columbus Quiz—Companion Taken To Dayton

Leroy Reiser, 29, Circleville, O., was to be taken from the county jail here Saturday afternoon to Birmingham, Ala., to face a charge of murdering Mrs. Lucy Leahy there in February, 1927.

Reiser, held here since Wednesday on charges of grand larceny and possessing narcotics, was to be taken to Birmingham by a detective from that city who arrived here Saturday with extradition papers from Governor Bibb Graves.

A Columbus detective, who also came here Saturday, will accompany the Birmingham officer and his prisoner. Columbus, where Reiser will be questioned in connection with the murder of a Columbus druggist a year ago during a hold-up. After the questioning the detective will start to Birmingham with his prisoner from Columbus.

Reiser is accused of strangling Mrs. Leahy in her apartment, robbing her of $175 in cash and a diamond ring, which was later recovered in Chattanooga, Tenn. The charge against Reiser is based on a confession he is said to have made ten months ago to a man arrested recently in Birmingham for pay roll robbery. The alleged robber has been promised immunity for the information as furnished in the Leahy murder and he identified Reiser here Thursday when brought here in custody of Marvin Garver, Birmingham detective.

Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, who has admitted to authorities that his correct name is Paul Setters, was removed to the jurisdiction of federal court at Dayton, Friday afternoon by Mont Spillman, deputy U. S. Marshal. Setters and Reiser were captured by Wayneville officers and a posse of Spring valley citizens Wednesday after they had robbed the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley physician.

Dental gold valued at between $400 and $500, believed to have been stolen, a revolver, hypodermic equipment and narcotics were found in their possession. Charges of grand larceny and narcotic possession filed against them here will probably be dropped in favor of the federal narcotic charge against Setters and the murder charge against his companion.

Reiser has been kept in ignorance of the murder charge against him and other prisoners in the county jail fretted because they had no newspapers Friday evening. Sheriff Ohmer Tate kept papers from the prisoners in the fear that Reiser would attempt suicide if he learned of the serious accusation against him.

When Sheriff Tate refused a request of Columbus police Friday to bring Reiser to that city to be questioned in connection with the Columbus murder, detectives said they would come to this city Friday night, but failed to do so. Any charge developed against him there would have to await disposition of the Birmingham case. Federal authorities waived a prior claim on Reiser on the narcotic charge to permit him being taken to Birmingham to face the murder charge.

OHIO GUARD UNITS IN NEW DIVISION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The war department is considering revision of its general mobilization plans so that in case of national emergency the celebrated rainbow (42nd) division, would be reconstituted in the same form as in the World War.

Elements of the old division, which won world-wide fame for its operations in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, are now in the National Guard of eight states.

The following units would constitute the division in the event of approval of the plan:

- 165th New York Infantry (now unassigned).
- 166th Ohio Infantry, 37th division.
- 167th Alabama Infantry, 31st division.
- 168th Iowa Infantry, 34th division.
- 150th Indiana Field Artillery, (unassigned).
- 151st Minnesota Field Artillery, 34th division.
- 154th New Jersey Ambulance Company, 4th division.
- 19th Michigan Ambulance Company, 32nd division.

ACQUIT DRY AGENT OF MURDER CHARGE

BALTIMORE, Feb. 18.—J. Randolph Brewer, federal prohibition agent, was freed of murder charges today which grew out of the killing of Charles V. Gundlach, 71-year-old Maryland farmer, during a raid on the farm.

A jury in federal court returned a verdict of not guilty after deliberating thirty-three minutes. Charges against three other agents will be dismissed as a result of the verdict.

Brewer and the federal government contended that Gundlach was shot in the course of duty and in self-protection. The state of Maryland, on the other hand, contended that Gundlach was introduced to show that Brewer and Gundlach were bitter personal enemies, and that Brewer had sworn to "get" the aged farmer. The state contended Brewer was a former moonshiner himself.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON
SHOULD WOMEN MAKE UP?
The time is really past when any woman asks that question.
Every woman has come to the conclusion that she should make up if necessary.

"Make up. Make up to whom?" growls his majesty.
"Make up to you, dear," answers friend wife.
"Well if by any chance you mean that awful paint and powder that I see on the other women of certain as well as uncertain age, you had better realize first as well as last, that you cannot make up to me with a grease paint makeup on your face."
"I want you as God made you," Friend wife being of her own day and age smiles enigmatically and holds her tongue between the white teeth which are disclosed by the smile; teeth, alas, which are not God-given, but the work of a very modern dentist.
Of course husband knows something about the work done on his wife's teeth. He got the bill but if anyone should tell him it was a part of her "makeup" he would shoot in derision.
However much we may differ on other points everyone will certainly agree that it is better to have false teeth than none. No one considers false teeth a weakness or a vanity.
We no longer plug up our teeth with gold. We want them to look natural, being conspicuous in conversation and necessarily in evidence when one smiles.
One of the things that a woman must remember when making up for or to husband is that smiles are a part of the general cosmetic regime.
A woman may have the most wonderful brain that was lodged in a feminine skull and if she has no physical charm, her women friends will be the only ones who appreciate her.
The use of judicious makeup is a woman's introduction to the masculine eye.

Memo: If you would enter his heart or his mind—first, you must be introduced.

WILL MEET MONDAY TO PLAN GOODWILL PROJECT AT CHURCH

Local churches, schools, P. T. A., Boy Scouts, and all organizations dealing with youth, are to be given an opportunity of participating in a nation-wide demonstration of good will for the people of Mexico, sponsored nationally by the Committee on World Friendship Among Children, and in this state by the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches.
A meeting will be held at the Presbyterian Church, Xenia, Monday afternoon, March 5 at 2:30 o'clock, to lay plans for the work.
"Friendship school bags" of a special design, emblematic of their good will purpose, are to be sent as gifts from the children of the United States to those of Mexico. The bags are obtainable through the office of the Ohio Council of Churches in Columbus and are to be equipped by the senders with a number of small gifts for those who receive them.
The Rev. W. H. Thompson, field secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches, visited the city recently to confer with local leaders regarding the project. The work in this county will be under the direction of a committee to be named by the church women's organizations.

MISS NELLE RINCK INJURED BY AUTO

Miss Nelle Rinck, W. Market St., had the ligaments in her left knee torn and received painful bruises when she was knocked down by an auto driven by Robert Knapp, 14, Springfield, and owned by Mrs. Melva Day, W. Second St., at Detroit and Leaman Sts. Friday evening.
Miss Rinck was walking north on Detroit St. Knapp, driving south on Detroit St., suddenly turned into Leaman St. Miss Rinck saw the approaching machine but did not realize the driver intended turning into Leaman St.
Knapp was not driving fast. His machine knocked Miss Rinck down but did not pass over her. He took her to the home of her sister, Mrs. James Paulin, N. Galloway St., where her injuries were treated.
Knapp reported the accident to police.

DUSTING FRUIT TREES
Dusting was as effective as spraying in the control of insects and diseases of peach trees in tests on the Belmont County Experiment Farm, according to I. P. Lewis, assistant horticulturist of the Ohio Experiment Station, in charge of this work.
Dust is more speedily applied than liquids. In an apple orchard with filler peach, it was found that the apple trees could be dusted for the control of diseases and insects without injury to the foliage of the peach trees. This was not true of the strong lime-sulphur solution used in spraying the apple trees. In spite of great care in spraying the apple trees, the peach leaves and fruit were injured by the spray that was carried over to the peach trees.
The dusting mixture used by Mr. Lewis was made up of 80 pounds superfine 300-mesh dusting sulphur 10 pounds high grade finishing lime and 10 pounds arsenate lead powder.
Five dustings were given the peach trees, using one-half to one and a half pounds of dust for each application, depending on the size of trees.
The trees were dusted when the blossoms showed pink, when the shuck of the peach had just fallen exposing the small fruit, two to three and five to six weeks after the shucks had fallen, and ten days to two weeks before the fruit ripened. In the first and fifth applications the arsenate of lead may be omitted and ten pounds of lime added in its place.
Effectiveness in dusting depends largely on thoroughness of the application. Both sides of the tree must be dusted each time so as to cover the entire surface. Early in the morning and late in the evening when the air is still are the best times to dust.

REGRET HAUNTING MOTHER OF SLAYER

the living room of her home here, and voices her regrets. She is the mother of Doris Palmer McDonald, who is sentenced to be hanged with her husband (George) March 23, at Valley Field, near Montreal, Canada, for the murder of a taxicab driver.
Mrs. Grecco, who divorced Doris' father, has only just learned of her "baby's" fate.
"I shall do all I can here, and then I must go to her," the mother insists. "I want her to realize she has a mother's love, and that I didn't give her away years ago because I didn't want her. Oh, if she would only realize that."
Mrs. Grecco says that after she had borne three children, two girls and a boy, her husband left her, and because she was so poor she couldn't buy them food or shoes, she allowed Dr. Frances Palmer, wealthy physician at Mount Vernon, N. Y., to adopt them.

In the intervening time Doris was reared and educated in luxury, according to Margaret Gould, governess for the girl, who is here trying to help the mother get assistance.
Miss Gould, a white-haired, kindly woman, says she cannot believe Doris ever helped to rob or kill. "She was too sweet and kind, as I knew her in the intimate years of her growing teens," the governess comforts the mother. "Some unkind fate crowded her into this."

THREE ARRESTED IN XENIA FACE LIQUOR LAW CHARGES HERE

Raids conducted by state prohibition agents assisted by county authorities early Friday afternoon resulted in the arrest of three Xenians on charges of liquor law violations.

Those under arrest are Michael J. Dugan, proprietor of a pool and billiard parlor and soft drink establishment, N. Whiteman St.; Wheeler Kimbro, colored, operator of an E. Main St. pool room, and James Blair, this city.

Dugan and Kimbro pleaded not guilty to charges of possessing liquor while Blair entered a not guilty plea to a charge of unlawful delivery of liquor before Probate Judge S. C. Wright Saturday morning.

The trio appeared in court Saturday following affidavits filed by Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall.

Raids on the Dugan and Kimbro pool rooms Friday by State Prohibition Inspectors John Powell and McGriff, assisted by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, resulted in the discovery and confiscation of quantities of liquor, authorities say.

One half-pint bottle containing a small amount of corn liquor was found at Kimbro's place of business, while three gallons of liquor, alleged to have been furnished by Blair, and a can containing about an ounce of liquor was found on Dugan's premises, it is charged.

The three men were released after furnishing appearance bonds of $500 each. Their hearings are set for Friday morning, February 24 at 9 a. m.

It is the second alleged offense for Dugan, who has an appeal pending before the United States Supreme Court from a conviction and subsequent fine of $1,000 and costs in the court of Mayor John W. Prugh for liquor violation.

Held by Own Law

Chester A. Good
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch To The Gazette

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 18.—Because of stronger laws, designed to curb crime, which he advocated and voted for as a member of the Michigan legislature, Chester A. Good, of Highland Park, Mich., is serving a five to fifteen years' sentence in the Detroit house of correction.

Implicated in an $1,800 jewel robbery, Good formerly could have been released on bail pending an appeal. But one of the laws he supported did away with that.

Another law, proposed by Good, but defeated in the legislature, providing a whipping post for bank robbers, caused Good's first trouble.

It came about in this manner: Albert Dubus, serving a sentence in Michigan state prison, confessed to a Highland Park bank robbery and accused Good of being an accomplice. Dubus said he was led to confess because of Good's proposal of lashes for bank robbers.

The legislator was acquitted, however, of the bank robbery charge, but was convicted of the jewel robbery chiefly through information given by Dubus.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

EVERY DESIRE SATISFIED — Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works. — Psalm 145:16, 17.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Washington's birthday is a quieter holiday than most of those appointed by law. But from our earliest national history, this day has been heartily observed, and more rationally than most of our festal occasions.

The people of the early days of the republic began celebrating his birthday during his lifetime. A great many famous men were never recognized widely until after they had passed on. But the glory of Washington's achievement was so complete and his service so incomparable, that the people from the very start felt a desire to do all possible to honor his name.

So in the early days of the country, there was hardly a town so small that it could not manage to have at least one notable function in honor of the father of the country. The women turned out in their most stunning costumes for balls and parties, and the stately old timers gathered at formal banquets, where every possible honor was done to his name and fame. The favorite song was "God bless Washington, long live great Washington."

And today, in thousands of cities and towns public functions are held at which tributes are paid to this famous man, while on the Sunday preceding many churches pay honors to his career. The schools note the occasion, and the fame and nobility of Washington's character and his practical achievement are held up as examples for youth to follow.

Only a very few men in the history of the world have so impressed themselves on the public imagination. It is a wonderful thing for a country to have this ideal to which to look back. When statesmen and politicians are tempted to do things unworthy of their country's history, there is something in this lofty example that helps to hold them to a true course.

ARE YOU A LAWBREAKER?

Two negroes were recently speaking about the legislature of their state, which was about to open. One asked the other what it was going to do, and upon being told that it was going to pass more laws inquired why, in view of the fact that it had passed several hundred laws the year before. To this inquiry, the other negro unconsciously made a very pertinent reply when he said they had to pass the new laws because the old ones were "broke."

With the tens of thousands of laws passed every year covering all sorts of trivial and personal matters affecting the actions of the individual in his home, on the street and while traveling, it is difficult not to break laws.

The situation offers a logical answer—stop passing new laws, repeal thousands of useless laws now on our statute books and enforce fundamental laws which have an actual bearing on property rights, crime and the protection of the nation.

GOING, NOT COMING

Don't look at old age as the failure of youth. Never say: "I am coming from a place, but say I am going to a place."

So speaks Lady Asquith, wife of the former prime minister of Great Britain. She annoys many people, sometimes by being truthful. She speaks well when she talks about our attitude toward age.

If you are fond of motoring you probably like to go one way and come home by another route. It gives you the sense of going somewhere for the whole tour. Half of it is not simply back-tracking. By taking a new route home you are constantly pushing into new territory.

So with age. Let's not look back. The fact that we are coming from a place is unimportant. The fact we are going to a place is highly important.

TEACHERS DO BETTER

We hear less about the poor pay of school teachers. That's not because people are less interested in teachers, but because salaries have greatly improved in the last few years. In Spain it is said there are 10,000 teachers who receive 58 cents a day. Nobody blames teachers in America for wanting more money—they deserve more—but they should take time off to be thankful they do not teach in Spain.

CREDIT

Guy Hulse, secretary of the National Retail Credit Association, tells us that of the enormous daily business done in the United States 87 per cent of it is on credit. Last year six and a half billion dollars worth of business was done on the installment plan.

If young men could only realize the tremendous importance of credit in this world, they might also come to realize the tremendous importance of behaving in such a way that their credit would never become impaired. The real collateral is the security of character. What you've got is something. What you are is everything.

THE NEW CITY

A Chicago business man airplaned up into Wisconsin the other night, made a speech, and got back home before his family returned from the opera. He predicted, in his address, that the Chicago of the future would run out 150 miles from the downtown district. So with all great cities—but it will be a long time. To use airplanes in numbers and for daily transportation, will require great areas for landing places and various other facilities which present day cities do not possess. The auto parking problem staggers us. Airplane parking would stagger us more.

—By—
BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Barbara Brooks was a bride of the month who departed from the usual pastel tradition in bridesmaid's costumes by choosing for her attendants mottled gray costumes of cardinal red velvet. It was a daring but somehow an appropriate touch for the month that holds St. Valentine's Day, and was a relief after the lavender, pale pink, apple greens and daffodil yellows of most wedding backgrounds. A friend of mine, whose chief diversion is attending all manner of weddings around town, tells me that the prettier the bride, the uglier her maids. I should think this would be poor psychology from a showman's point of view, since such canny exhibitors as Florenz Ziegfeld and George White, to say nothing of Earl Carroll, specialize in ladies of the assemblage whose charms frequently outshine those of the so-called star. In "Paris Bound," a play of the season, which begins with the wedding of the hero and heroine, it is indicated that the bridegroom has an unholy attraction for one of the maids, a dark-eyed nymph afflicted with the divine discontent of the Celt, and hell-bent for trouble in any guise. Any girl planning her bridal party, after a session with "Paris Bound," would probably look about her and choose carefully from among her acquaintances those maids with little or no sex appeal.

The skyline of Forty-second street is to be further ornamented shortly by the towers of a new 54-story office building, on the east side of Lexington avenue, and therefore directly across from the back door of Grand Central station. More and more, as skyscrapers replace the old four and five-story buildings in this district, I am oppressed by the feeling that the streets themselves are becoming too close and airless for human beings. Sunlight is being shut out from the pavements and air is being highly charged with the exhaust of motors which charge madly up and down. The rising New York Central building, straddling Park avenue at Forty-sixth street, and now well on its way in the steel work, at least, depresses me. I do not seem to get any thrill out of the knowledge that it is "the gateway to a continent." I only know it shuts off a great deal of the little air and space which had remained in that part of town. And its construction, with the consequent diversion of traffic, makes the life of the pedestrian infinitely more difficult.

I note that the Schulte cigar store at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue has had its telephone booths removed. This will prove rather a tragedy to the shopper on a still hunt for a telephone, while it will doubtless be a boon to the harassed clerk who tried to sell cigars and long-johns as the crowd milled around the phones. You can walk for blocks on Fifth avenue without coming within shouting range of a telephone. I feel the removal of the cigar store booths as a distinct personal loss.

A veteran wheeze out of vandyville has been successfully revived about town. It runs: "An empty taxi drove up to the senate and Senator Heflin got out."

GETTING AWAY FROM RULE OF THUMB

We are living in an era when business men are coming more and more to know what they're about. Every year scientific precision replaces a few more items of guesswork.

A man of my acquaintance wished to start a candy store. He did not set upon a location at random, and trust to luck that he would do enough business to pay the rent.

First he observed the traffic in various parts of the shopping district until he found a locality where women pedestrians were noticeably more numerous than men. He counted the traffic at a certain point, and found that the average number of persons passing each day was 15,557-9, 307 women and 6,250 men.

Now, previous investigation had taught him that the grade of candy he expected to sell would attract into his store 2.9 women out of every 100 passing, and 1.5 men. Therefore, he might expect, each day, 269.9 women buyers and 93.75 men, or a total of 363 persons in his store each day.

He picked out a vacant store room 1,500 feet from any other candy shop. That distance from the nearest competitor, he happened to know, would mean an average purchase of about 35 cents. Allowing 300 business days to the year, he figured that the annual gross income should be $37,065.

The man knew that 20 per cent of his gross receipts would be a proper allowance for rent, provided the store was of a certain size. Therefore, he could pay $7,412 annual rent.

But the room he wished to use was of such width and depth that it was worth only 70 per cent of the store he used as his standard. The most he should pay, then, for the room he wanted was $5,189 a year. He went to the owner of the building and found that he could rent the room for about $3,800 a year—or nearly $1,400 less than he could have afforded to pay.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THE UPHILL PATH TO BEAUTY

To the woman who suddenly awakes to the consciousness that she is no longer young, there comes a time when the Road to Loveliness seems all up hill. Perhaps it is—but if ever anything was well worth the effort it takes to achieve—beauty is!

"But Beauty," you tell me, "is only for the few." You are so wrong. The woman with a smooth, unlined skin; hands soft and white; hair gleaming with health and vitality, a lithe, youthful figure is always a beautiful woman. Understand first that beauty is for you, and then set about to achieve it. When you are tired, after a long, weary day, whether the day was spent over a desk, a bridge table or just in the thousand and one tasks which comprise the homemaker's labors, the one thing that seems least important in the world is your personal appearance. You don't seem to care what you look like. And you go to bed without removing your cosmetics, without cleaning your tired, eyes or brushing your hair. One night doesn't seem to matter. But it is just one night! It seems to me that of three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, a woman goes to bed tired three hundred and sixty-four! I only hope that she isn't neglectful all that time. Although sometimes, when young girls come in to me, their pretty faces disfigured by blackheads and open pores, lines of weariness around their eyes and mouths, I feel disheartened at their lack of energy—that effortless sinking into unbecoming, premature age. When you stop to realize that at forty you should be at your best, that fifty should be an age of ripe beauty for you, doesn't it seem criminal to fling away your possibilities just through neglect? Ten minutes of prevention, every night isn't going to make you one bit more tired, and it will preserve indefinitely a youthful, lovely skin.

Start on the uphill path to beauty. Cleanse your skin every night of your life. There are cleansing creams so soft, so non-irritative that the process really is effortless! Skin-toning lotions that instantly refresh; chemical stimulants that whip up the circulation, arousing your innermost beauty just through the deft passing of a prepared pad of cotton over your face. And if you faithfully follow a scientific beauty regime—you will hardly know a blemish or a single line. It is worth it, isn't it?

Diet and Health

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

GET YOUR PROTEIN

If a fertile egg is kept uniformly warm for three weeks, it develops into a chick. The white of the egg—the protein—and the yolk, develop into flesh, bones, feathers and all its tissues. It is the white which contains most of the elements necessary to build these structures, the yolk furnishing food containing the other necessary elements for the growing chick.

Protein foods are absolutely necessary for the building and repair of the tissues in all animal life. Protein is present in nearly all foods, but only those that have a considerable amount are known as protein foods. These are milk and cheese, eggs, flesh foods, legumes and some nuts. After adult age is reached, protein still is necessary to make new blood cells and to repair old tissues. Therefore it is very important to have an adequate amount in the diet.

An adult requires, according to Chittenden, one and one-half calories of protein for each pound of normal body weight, daily. (Children need about twice that amount, after the first year). For instance, if your normal weight is 150, you will need 225 C. of protein daily. The kinds of protein are important, also, for not all proteins are complete; that is, they do not contain all of the building properties. Most vegetable proteins come in this class. Milk and cheese, eggs and animal flesh and organs contain the complete protein. Some nuts, notably peanuts, almonds, coconuts and pecans, also contain a protein that has been found to be adequate for growth.

An excess of protein may be $3,800 a year—or nearly $1,400 less than he could have afforded to pay.

He was in the excellent position of knowing exactly what he wanted. The value of the storehouse he owned than did the man who needed it.

deposited as fat, for more than one-half of the protein molecule is converted to starch in the body. An excess is harmful, also, because the kidneys have to excrete the protein wastes, and the excess may injure them.

In certain chronic diseases, an extra amount of protein may be necessary. In pernicious anemia, for instance, an excess is taken (in the form of the liver diet), because there is a greater need for building new blood cells. After wasting diseases, it may also be necessary to have a larger amount than normal. Many suffer from an excess of protein, especially large meat eaters, but there are many who also suffer from taking too small an amount.

I shall give you a protein table, so that you can see that you get your daily share, not too much nor too little.

Approximate Number of Protein

Calories in 100-Calorie Portion of Food
Bread, 1 slice (whole wheat highest), 12 to 16 C. Protein.
Cooked cereals, 1 small cup (oatmeal highest), 10 to 18 C. Protein.
Rice, 1 small cup, 10 C. Protein.
Macaroni, 1 small cup, 15 C. Protein.
Skim and Buttermilk, 10 ounces, 35 C. Protein.
Ordinary Cheese, 1 1/4 inch cubes, 25 C. Protein.
Cottage Cheese, 6 level tablespoons, 75 C. Protein.
Eggs, 7 and 1-3, 36 C. Protein.
Meat or fish, 2 to 3 ounces (very lean), 50 to 75 C. Protein.
Nuts (peanuts highest) peanuts, almonds, walnuts, 10 to 20 C. Protein.
Beans, 1-3 cup average, 20 C. Protein.
Green peas, 3-4 cup average, 28 C. Protein.
Corn, 1-3 cup average, 12 C. Protein.
Onions, 3 to 4 medium, 12 C.

MENU HINT

I have an apology to make. Somehow, in giving my favorite recipe for ginger cookies I left out the liquid, so I am printing it again with the correction. I'll add cookies to the breakfast menu. Many people still feel a meal—even breakfast—is not complete without a sweet in the form of cookie or doughnut.

BREAKFAST
Bananas Oatmeal with Bran
Whole Wheat Toast
Baked Apples Molasses Cookies
Coffee or Substitute

SUPPER
Cream of Carrot Soup
Celery Stewed Fruit
Bread and Butter
Cake Tea or Milk

TODAY'S RECIPES

Molasses Cookies—One cup brown sugar, one cup shortening, one cup molasses, one egg, one tablespoon ginger and cinnamon, one-half cup hot water, one tablespoon soda, dissolved in the hot water, a little salt, flour to roll as soft as can be handled.

Cream of Carrot Soup—Three medium-sized carrots, three cups milk, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup cream, one slice onion, one bay leaf, one tablespoon salt. Wash, scrape and slice the carrots; cook in boiling, salted water. Steep the bay leaf and onion in the milk and cream in a double boiler for 15 minutes. Remove the onion and bay leaf and thicken with flour. Put the carrots through a colander or leave in slices, and add to the thickened milk and cream. Parsley may be added.

SUGGESTIONS
Protect Dresser
When putting a dresser scarf or cover on a dresser or stand, cut piece of wadding the size of the cover and put in on the dresser before putting the cover on. This keeps the articles on the stand from marring it, and is inexpensive.

FRITTERS

Fritters are served for luncheon, dinner or supper as an entree, vegetable or sweet, according to their ingredients. Plain fritter batter is made as follows. One cup flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, add beaten egg and milk and beat until smooth. Apples or bananas may be dipped in this batter and fried in deep fat. Other fruit and vegetables, fresh or canned, the latter drained, may be used in the fritter batter.

Protein.
Potato, 1 medium, 12 C. Protein.
Tomatoes, 1 pound, 15 C. Protein.
Fresh fruits, 2 to 10 C. Protein.

For those who are interested, we have an article on Balanced Diet which can be obtained by enclosing a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents with request.

Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.

NOTE:—Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope with orders for pamphlets on reducing and gaining.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Investigation has become one of the United States senate's leading industries. More of it is going on now than ever before, all at once, in congress history.

The salons are busy with 17 separate "probes," or have resolutions pending, calling for them. The resolutions will pass, too—at any rate, most of them will—because they're a darned nuisance in the administration in power, especially with election just coming in, and the senatorial crowd which enjoys plugging the administration has got the votes to do it.

The big inquiry of the moment, of course, is "oil." The best of the slush fund affair appears to be over, the committee already having lifted Frank L. Smith's scalp, and being dead certain to get Bill Vare's also. But some of the others, yet to be started, promise plenty of sensations.

For instance, Senator Walsh of Montana, is sure to stir up the animals for fair, when he begins digging into the public utility corporations. Senator Johnson, likewise, has a public utility resolution on file, relating exclusively, however, to the telephone. Senator Blease offers a third, in which he goes Sen. Johnson a couple of stacks of chips better, by including telegraph and cable lines, as well as the phone.

Senator Mayfield wants to know all about the agriculture department's cotton reports, in connection with their effect on the market.

Our foreign relations seem likely to be looked into. One resolution seeks all available information relative to the "concessions" obtained abroad—anywhere—by American citizens or companies.

Senator Wheeler seeks light, in particular, on the subject of American "concessions" in Nicaragua—and what American marines are doing about 'em. As a broad general proposition, Senator La Follette wants to ask everything bearing on our attitude toward the Latin American republics.

Senator McKellar is curious as to the extent to which American private loans in France are dependent upon ratification of French war debt settlement. Senator King suggests poking into the federal reserve system—incidentally mentioning "recent bank failures." He proposes, too, an Indian investigation—as well, he adds, as "for other purposes"—elastic, that.

Besides the wire and cable services, Senator Johnson thinks the coal industry should be "probed." Senator McKellar demands details of income tax refunds exceeding $50,000 per beneficiary. Is there such a thing as "industrial espionage"?—if so, is it an evil?—a couple more of Senator Wheeler's queries. Dissatisfied with the navy's account of the S-4 sinking, Senator Trammell believes the senate should inquire into it. And passage of the bill continuing the federal radio commission for a year, launched, in effect, an investigation to determine whether or not there's a radio monopoly.

It will be noted that these inquiries and proposed inquiries, are not fathered, in the main, by senators who are any too well disposed toward the present executive regime in Washington.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

COURAGE, FRIEND!

It takes courage to turn your back on home and loved ones and go into a foreign land to suffer hunger, exposure, wounds and death for what you think is right.

Men and women do it daily. It is harder to face life when friends prove untrue and loved ones die. The writer of the following letter knows the bitterness of both, and doubts the worth of life.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a single man, 30 years of age, am tall, slim and considered good looking. Please tell me what you pray for. For I am one that is paying the price of life."

"I have an apology to make. Somehow, in giving my favorite recipe for ginger cookies I left out the liquid, so I am printing it again with the correction. I'll add cookies to the breakfast menu. Many people still feel a meal—even breakfast—is not complete without a sweet in the form of cookie or doughnut."

"I have a good position and an excellent name. I have always been a sober man and lived a Christian life. Now, Mrs. Lee, do you think it is worth while after all, to go ahead and hope to some day meet a real girl that would love me and be true?"

"Yes, I do think it is worth while to go ahead and hope, and do all you can to realize your dream. Put the thought out of your mind. She is worth no regrets. Be glad you found out how shallow she was. Troubles sometimes seem to pile on top of one until one is actually smothered, and then things begin to lighten. Keep up your courage, and I assure you you will yet have a happy home."

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Will you give space in your column to a matter of interest to both boys and girls. As a rule I think your advice is very good, but in your advice to L. S. you advise that she send her boy friend cigarettes. I want to ask you if you don't think you should have left out cigarettes when there are so many nice things to give him that he not habit forming? F. V. G."

Thank you for the suggestion, Mrs. T. V. G. Most boys do smoke, so I thought of that as an inexpensive present, but I certainly would not want her to start him smoking if he has not already begun.

Creamed Ham—Creamed ham calls for a slice of smoked ham cooked and cut in small pieces and smothered in a cream or white sauce.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A QUEER NUT CRACKER

Taking the butternut in his beak, Nuthatcher hopped along where the snow had drifted from the top of the stones and left two sharp points bare. Between the points Nuthatcher dropped his butternut and pushed it down with his claw until it was firmly wedged there. Then, as the boy watched him the little bird hit the butternut again and again with his bill.

Crack! Crack! The tough shell of the butternut broke open and Nuthatcher had given it several blows and the bird began to pick out the sweet meat.

"Have a piece?" asked he, offering a bit of nut to Peter, but the boy shook his head.

"You will need it all for yourself, Nuthatch," said he. "I am not a bit hungry and you must be starved. But thank you all the same. Do you know, for all that you are so small you must have a great deal of strength to be able to do a thing like that. You used your bill exactly like a hatchet! Nut! Nuthatch! Well I declare! Now I know where you got your name!" Nuthatch chirped merrily.

"Didn't you guess before?" asked the bird.

"I am glad you found out for yourself, without my telling you. In the first place you might not have believed that I could crack nuts with my sharp beak and in the second place anything that one discovers makes it twice as interesting. I am ever so much obliged for your kindness in helping me. If I had known that the sun had melted that sleet I need not have bothered you at all."

"Bother me!" exclaimed the boy. "You didn't! Only I wish I might have been of some use. I don't do a thing but hand you the butternut. I suppose you must hurry off now! Is your wife far from here?"

"Not very," chirped the little bird. "She was sitting on the trunk of that tree while we were talking."

"But I am not a thief!" protested the boy.

him now, for some time."

"Well, can't I take Flicker's place?" asked a voice suddenly and Peter looking around, found himself staring into the bright eyes of a fat, fluffy bird, that looked a bit like Woodpecker but was not larger than Nuthatch.

"It is kind of you to offer Downy," said Nuthatch at once. "Two-Legs, allow me to introduce you to Downy Woodpecker, the smallest but most important member of the Police Force, and another cousin of Sergeant Flicker. Take him at a word and ask Downy the questions you would have put to Woodpecker."

Central Cagers Defeat St. Rose At Lima 29 To 22

FIRST TEAM RUSHED INTO FRACAS AFTER LIMA OBTAINS LEAD

Eighth Victory For Xenia—Withrow Here Saturday

The Blue and White displayed continued improved form to obtain its eighth victory of the season.

Coach Kolb started his second team and the reserves, after initiating the scoring on a basket by Smittle, proved unable to cope with the Lima quintet and St. Rose quickly ran up a lead of 11 to 2.

With things progressing so unfavorably, the Central High team decided the stage was set for the entry of his first team into the pastime. The "varsity" wasted no time in getting its offensive under way and at the conclusion of the first period had drawn up on even terms with the home team, 13 to 13.

Close guarding upon the part of both teams featured the second period. As a result of the tight defensive work, neither team obtained a field goal. Each quintet tied the score in three charity shots and at score was still deadlocked, 16 to 16 at the half-way point.

In the third stanza, Xenia, with Doak showing the way, stepped out and drew away from St. Rose. Running up an advance of 27 to 18 as the quarter ended, Lima was out-pointed in this period 11 to 2. Central contented itself with holding the lead in the final quarter. Playing conservatively, the Blue and White kept possession of the ball most of the time and St. Rose, although outscoring the Blue and White in the last period, proved unequal to the task of catching the flying Xenia machine.

Xenia performed in the most approved fashion but tried to conserve its energy for the more important struggle with Withrow High School of Cincinnati here Saturday night.

Doak and Morton, Central's scoring aces, were high-point men of the contest with eleven and eight points respectively. Townsend and Lynch, each with six points, divided Lima's scoring honors.

As the game started, Smittle shot a basket. Then St. Rose began to run up the score. Lynch and Saunders made baskets. Lynch came back with another, Quinn turned in a foul. Lynch added a fielder and Townsend entered the fray and Morton celebrated the entry of the first-string players by counting two baskets in rapid succession. Higgins dropped in a long shot and Captain Clemans also connected from long-range. Morton sank a short shot and Doak made good a free throw. Townsend tied the score with a basket as the quarter ended.

The closely-knit defense of both teams kept down the score in the second quarter. Central's scoring consisted of two free throws by Doak and one by Morton. Schneider shot three fouls for St. Rose.

In the third period Xenia's offense began to function and Lima was held to a single basket. Doak opened with a neat fielder and Townsend offset this with a basket. Higgins put Xenia into the lead again with a basket and thereafter Xenia was always ahead. Doak broke away for three straight fielders and Morton contributed a foul as the period ended.

The final quarter was almost a repetition of the second as Xenia's scoring dwindled to two free throws, one by Clemans and another by Smittle.

Palmer, subbing for Lynch at guard for St. Rose, held Doak scoreless in this quarter and also contributed two baskets for his team's only points of the period.

Central turned eleven shots from the foul line into seven points, a good average. St. Rose made four out of nine foul shots, not so good as Xenia, but still, good.

Xenia's cage squad remained overnight at Lima, returning home Saturday for the important contest with Withrow at the local gym Saturday night. Withrow has a strong team this season. The "Tigers" defeated Walnut Hills of Cincinnati, 29 to 17 Friday night. The score was:

Xenia (29)
Scurry, f. 0 0 0
Buell, c. 0 0 0

COON AND FOX HUNTERS MERGE WITH FISH AND GAME SOCIETY

The Greene County Coon and Fox Hunters Association was merged into the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association at a joint re-organization meeting in the assembly room at the Court House Friday night.

Charles Taylor was elected president of the fish and game organization for 1928, succeeding Frank S. Linkhart, this city, who has served for two years.

Roscoe Turner, who had served as president of the coon and fox hunters organization, was made vice president, while Harry Richards was elected secretary.

Another meeting is scheduled to be held next Thursday night at the Court House, to be featured by appointment of various committees to outline activities for the year.

State Representative R. D. Williamson delivered an address at the meeting.

Members of the organizations learned that Charles V. Traux, state director of agriculture, has consented to a suggestion whereat by coons may be raised in conjunction with the operation of the state fish hatchery, which is to be established on a site on the Springfield Pike, north of Xenia.

Several hunters in the county have coons which they have agreed to give for this purpose. Coons would be raised on the state property and liberated over the county at intervals.

Physical education program at Central High School this year and extension of the gymnasium facilities for community use, has resulted in the gym being put to greater use than ever before, school officials announce.

A survey discloses that several hundred boys and girls are receiving physical education benefits through utilization of the gym more often than heretofore.

To begin with, gym work is on the regular high school program. In addition, about sixty girls in the eighth grade and freshmen class, under the supervision of Miss Faye Cavanaugh, have been meeting in the gym twice a week in sessions for instruction in corrective calisthenics and various exercises including games.

The girls present an attractive appearance in regulation gym uniforms.

Special gym facilities have recently been extended to the seventh grade boys in the nature of an experiment. A class of boys under Edward Higgins, high school senior, has been receiving instruction two days each week.

The boys go to the gym during their study periods, studying one-half of the period and playing games the remainder of the period. Sixty boys are participating on class teams in the intra-school basketball league in the high school. Glen Atterson, junior high coach, has two squads of thirty-one boys in Junior High under his direction.

It is also estimated that 100 grade school children participated in the recent Intra-City Grade School Basketball League, playing league games weekly on Saturday mornings, and also practicing several evenings a week.

The gym is also being placed at the disposal of the community more than before. A Sunday school league plays basketball games on Mondays and Fridays, St. Bridgid High School has the gym two nights a week, the Famous Auto Five on Wednesday nights and other independent teams hold practices and games there.

While the equipment for gym work is not as elaborate as desired, much is being accomplished with the facilities available, school officials say.

BELLBROOK DEFEAT OF SPRING VALLEY IS SWEET REVENGE

Neutral Referee Pleases Both And Trouble Averted

Bellbrook High School's basketball team avenged an early season defeat by Spring Valley High School by winning the return contest 35 to 26 on the Bellbrook floor before the largest crowd of the season Friday night.

Spring Valley had previously refused to play the game for which it had contracted early in the season and a controversy between the two schools reached a point where H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, took a hand in the dispute.

Townsend ruled that inasmuch as Bellbrook had played at Spring Valley, in fairness to all, Spring Valley should play its scheduled game at Bellbrook or risk being dropped from membership in the state association. As a result of this ultimatum, the contest was played and an exciting game resulted.

Leeming, of Ohio State University, appointed by the association commissioner because officials of the two schools could not agree on a referee for the contest, officiated Friday night in a manner which is said to have met with the approval of both teams.

In the preliminary between the girls' teams of the two schools, Bellbrook feminine tossers won 27 to 19.

Protests Innocence

Friends and attorneys for Mrs. Julia Palmer McDonald have begun last efforts to save her from the gallows at Valley Field, Quebec, where she is sentenced to die March 23 with her husband, George, for the murder of Astar Bouchard, taxi driver, last summer. ## FIND MURDERED OFFICERS

Here are the bodies of Wallace McClure and John P. Grove, Lafayette, Ind., deputy sheriffs, just after they were found murdered, in open view of a much-traveled highway, seven miles east of Danville, Ill., and near Foster, Ind. In background are the three men, who found the bodies and the police chief of Covington, Ind. The deputies disappeared nine days prior to the finding of their bodies while taking two youths, John Burns and Samuel Baxter, to the Indiana reformatory at Pendleton.

COURT INSTRUCTS VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT AT DAMAGE TRIAL

Jury trial of the $15,000 damage suit of Otis Soddors, Jamestown, on behalf of his infant daughter, Jean, against Gene Gordon, Jamestown, in connection with an accident September 1, 1927, terminated in Common Pleas Court Saturday morning when Judge R. L. Gowdy took the case out of the hands of the jury and directed a verdict in favor of the defendant.

Trial of the suit began Friday and was continued Saturday. When all testimony had been submitted and the stage was set for counsel arguments, defense counsel made a motion for a directed verdict by the court for the defendant.

Plaintiff's counsel retaliated with a motion requesting that the court instruct the jury to deliver a verdict for the plaintiff, only having to the jury the question of determining the amount.

The two motions automatically took the case away from the jurisdiction of the jury.

Testimony of about twenty witnesses was heard during the trial. Soddors filed the damage suit on behalf of his infant daughter, then two years and eight months old, who may be disfigured for life as a result of injuries sustained in the accident September 1, he claimed.

The child was playing in the street near her home with companions and was struck by Gordon's auto when she ran across Buckles Ave.

It was claimed she sustained a fractured skull, was unconscious five or six days, that hemorrhage resulted, her left side was paralyzed and that her left eye became crossed, forcing her to hold her head sideways.

The father declared that a condition of total paralysis continued for six days and that partial paralysis still exists on the left side head, arm and neck.

The nature of her injuries will cause spasms, epilepsy and mental troubles in the future, it was charged.

Attorney F. Scott Zimmerman, Cleveland, O., represented the plaintiff and Attorney J. C. Marshall the defendant.

Central Cagers Defeat St. Rose At Lima 29 To 22

FIRST TEAM RUSHED INTO FRACAS AFTER LIMA OBTAINS LEAD

Eighth Victory For Xenia—Withdraw Here Saturday

The Blue and White displayed continued improved form to obtain its eighth victory of the season.

Each Kolb started his second team and the reserves, after initiating the scoring on a basket by Smith, proved unable to cope with the Lima quintet and St. Rose quickly ran up a lead of 11 to 2.

With things progressing so unfavorably, the Central High men decided the game was set for the entry of his first team into the pastime. The "varsity" wasted no time in getting its offensive under way and at the conclusion of the first period had drawn up on even terms with the home team, 13 to 13.

Close guarding upon the part of both teams featured the second period. As a result of the tight defensive work, neither team obtained a field goal. Each quintet turned in three charity shots and the score was still deadlocked, 16 to 16 at the half-way point.

In the third stanza, Xenia, with Doak showing the way, stepped out and drew away from St. Rose, running up an advantage of 27 to 18 as the quarter ended. Lima was out-pointed in this period 11 to 2. Central contented itself with holding the lead in the final quarter. Playing conservatively, the Blue and White kept possession of the ball most of the time and St. Rose, although outscoring the visitors 4 to 2 in the last period, proved unequal to the task of catching the flying Xenia machine.

Xenia performed in the most approved fashion but tried to conserve its energy for the more important struggle with Withrow High School of Cincinnati here Saturday night.

Doak and Morton, Central's scoring aces, were high-point men of the contest with eleven and eight points respectively. Townsend and Lynch, each with six points, divided Lima's scoring honors.

As the game started, Smith shot a basket. Then St. Rose broke to run up the score. Lynch and Saunders made baskets. Lynch came back with another. Quinn turned in a foul. Lynch added a fielder and Townsend another.

Central's first team entered the fray and Morton celebrated the entry of the first-string players by counting two baskets in rapid succession. Higgins dropped in a long shot and Captain Clemans also connected from long-range. Morton sank a short shot and Doak made good a free throw. Townsend tied the score with a basket as the quarter ended.

The closely-knit defense of both teams kept down the score in the second quarter. Central's scoring consisted of two free throws by Doak and one by Morton. Schneider shot three fouls for St. Rose.

In the third period, Xenia's offense began to function and Lima was held to a single basket. Doak opened with a neat fielder and Townsend offset this with a basket. Higgins put Xenia into the lead again with a basket and thereafter Xenia was always ahead.

Doak broke away for three straight fielders and Morton contributed a foul as the period ended.

The final quarter was almost a repetition of the second as Xenia's scoring dwindled to two free throws, one by Clemans and another by Smith.

Palmer, subbing for Lynch at guard for St. Rose, held Doak scoreless in this quarter and also contributed two baskets for his team's only points of the period.

Central turned eleven shots from the foul line into seven points, a good average. St. Rose made four out of nine foul shots, not so good as Xenia, but still good.

Xenia's cage squad remained overnight at Lima, returning home Saturday for the important contest with Withrow at the local gym Saturday night. Withrow has a strong team this season. The "tigers" defeated Walnut Hills of Cincinnati, 39 to 17 Friday night. The score:

COON AND FOX HUNTERS MERGE WITH FISH AND GAME SOCIETY

The Greene County Coon and Fox Hunters Association was merged into the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association at a joint re-organization meeting in the assembly room at the Court House Friday night.

Charles Taylor was elected president of the fish and game organization for 1928, succeeding Frank S. Linkhart, this city, who has served for two years.

Roscoe Turner, who had served as president of the coon and fox hunters organization, was made vice president, while Harry Richards was elected secretary.

Another meeting is scheduled to be held next Thursday night at the Court House, to be featured by ap-

PHYSICAL EDUCATION PROGRAM KEEPS CENTRAL GYM OCCUPIED

Enlargement of the physical development program at Central High School this year and extension of the gymnasium facilities for community use, has resulted in the gym being put to greater use than ever before, school officials announce.

A survey discloses that several hundred boys and girls are receiving physical educational benefits through utilization of the gym more often than heretofore.

To begin with, gym work is on the regular high school program. In addition, about sixty girls in the eighth grade and freshmen class, under the supervision of Miss Faye Cavannah, have been meeting in the gym twice a week in

FOUR GAMES FRIDAY PRODUCE NO CHANGE IN LOOP STANDING

Second U. P. Seniors, First M. E. Seniors, Trinity Juniors and Reformed Juniors were victorious in the second round of play in the Sunday School Basketball League at Central High School gymnasium Friday night.

The 2nd U. P. Church team now leads the senior league with two victories and no defeats, while Trinity M. E. Church Juniors are out in front in the second division with two games won and no losses.

In the inaugural game of the evening, Trinity Juniors defeated the First M. E. Church Juniors 14 to 3 in a hotly-contested game. Monroe scored six points for the winners. Price led the losers with four.

In the second contest, the Reformed Church Juniors doubled the score on the Second U. P. Juniors, winning handily 12 to 5. Monroe, Elchman and Hardy shared scoring honors for the winners, each with four points. Lorimer tallied two baskets for the losers.

The Second U. P. Church Seniors meted out a 17 to 13 defeat to the Reformed Church Seniors in the third contest, largely through the efforts of Douthett, who scored thirteen points. Levey was best for the losers with seven points.

The First M. E. Church Seniors, fortified by the presence of "Butch" Gagner, "Bull Dog" Smith and Vannorsdall in the lineup, piled up a huge margin in setting back Trinity M. E. Church Seniors 33 to 17 in the fourth game.

Gagner scored twenty points, Smith, twenty-two, and Vannorsdall, eleven, accounting for all the team's scoring. Leopold tallied nine points for the losing team.

FIND MURDERED OFFICERS

Here are the bodies of Wallace McClure and John P. Grove, Lafayette, Ind., deputy sheriffs, just after they were found murdered, in open view of a much-traveled highway, seven miles east of Danville, Ill., and near Foster, Ind. In background are the three men, who found the bodies and the police chief of Covington, Ind. The deputies disappeared nine days prior to the finding of their bodies while taking two youths, John Burns and Samuel Baxter, to the Indiana reformatory at Pendleton.

COURT INSTRUCTS VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT AT DAMAGE TRIAL

Jury trial of the $15,000 damage suit of Otis Sadders, Jamestown, on behalf of his infant daughter, Jean, against Gene Gordon, Jamestown, in connection with an accident September 1, 1927, terminated in Common Pleas Court Saturday morning when Judge R. L. Gowdy took the case out of the hands of the jury and directed a verdict in favor of the defendant.

The father declared that a condition of total paralysis continued for six days and that partial paralysis still exists on the left side head, arm and neck.

The nature of her injuries will cause spasms, epilepsy and mental troubles in the future, it was charged.

Attorney F. Scott Zimmerman, Cleveland, O., represented the plaintiff and Attorney J. C. Marshall the defendant.

Testimony of about twenty witnesses was heard during the trial. Sadders filed the damage suit on behalf of his infant daughter, Jean, two years and eight months old, who may be disgraced for life as a result of injuries sustained in the accident September 1, he claimed.

The child was playing in the street near her home with companions and was struck by Gordon's auto when she ran across Buckles Ave.

It was claimed she sustained a fractured skull, was unconscious five or six days, that hemorrhage resulted, her left side was paralyzed and that her left eye became crossed forcing her to hold her head sideways.

This Great Healing Oil Must Banish Eczema and Skin Trouble

Dr Your Money Back. That's the Plan on Which Emerald Oil Is Sold by Sayre's Drug Store and All Good Druggists

Make up your mind today that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well.

You've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Sayre's Drug Store or any other good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short ointments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

Don't expect a single bottle to do it all at once but one bottle we know will show you beyond all question that you have at last discovered one way to restore your skin to perfect health.

Remember that Moore's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

The Theater

"Here comes the Showboat!" Up the river as spring blossoms into the fullness of summer, rings out the cry: "Showboat's coming!" Down the river until autumn chills the air, go the tidings.

The Cotton Blossom, largest of the nine showboats which ply the rivers each season, ties up at some Ohio River front town for its one-night stand. From the farms, from small river towns, even from cities the showboat draws its audiences. Some come to scoff at this provincial form of entertainment. At the heart rending scenes in the old homestead, at the "regulation" villain and the pure-hearted hero, at the bursts of sentimental song during some stirring passage. These scoffers are from the cities; to them the showboat is a novelty, unheard-of until fiction made it popular.

But there are other audiences. There are those who come to it breathless, enraptured as the pageant of "The Little Lost Sister," or "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" moves before them. And these, living in villages and on farms, with the two visits of the showboat during a season as almost their only taste of legitimate drama testify to that eternal desire to watch stage art in the flesh. Notwithstanding the inroads the motion picture has made against the stage, the showboat never fails to draw its full quota of spectators. As these audiences numbering 1,200 when the auditorium of the Cotton Blossom is filled to capacity, make their way up the incline leading from the water's edge, at Uniontown, Ky., at Madison, Ind., at New Richmond, O., at Point Pleasant, W. Va., at Rochester, Pa. they talk about the play and then they talk about the folk who have acted in it. What are they like, these energetic men and women, who exit after a heavy scene, only to return a moment later to enter, tain before the curtain while the new set is being arranged? What sort of lives do they live?

First among them must be mentioned Mr. and Mrs. D. Otto Hittner. Owner of the Cotton Blossom for fifteen years, since the death of the original owner, Hittner acts in the company and takes charge of the business affairs. Before joining the showboat troop, he was a professional baseball player in summer and a stage hand in winter, and later a theater manager.

"Here comes the Showboat!" Up the river as spring blossoms into the fullness of summer, rings out the cry! "Showboat's coming!" Down the river until autumn chills the air, go the tidings.

The Cotton Blossom, largest of the nine showboats which ply the rivers each season, ties up at some Ohio River front town for its overnight stand. From the farms, from small river towns, even from cities the showboat draws its audiences. Some come to scoff at this provincial form of entertainment—at the heart rending scenes in the old homestead, at the "regulation" villain and the pure-hearted hero, at the bursts of sentimental song during some stirring passage. These scoffers are from the cities; to them the showboat is a novelty, unheard-of until fiction made it popular.

But there are other audiences. There are those who come to sit breathless, enraptured as the pages of "The Little Lost Sister," or "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" moves before them. And these, living in villages and on farms, with the two visits of the showboat during a season as almost their only taste of legitimate drama testify to that eternal desire to watch stage art in the flesh. Notwithstanding the throngs the motion picture has made against the stage, the showboat never fails to draw its full quota of spectators. As these audiences, numbering 1,200 when the auditorium of the Cotton Blossom is filled to capacity, make their way up the incline leading from the water's edge at Uniontown, Ky., at Madison, Ind., at Pleasant, W. Va., at Rochester, Pa. they talk about the play and then they talk about the folk who have acted in it. What are they like, these energetic men and women, who exit after a heavy scene, only to return a moment later to enter, tain before the curtain while the new set is being arranged? What sort of lives do they live?

First among them must be mentioned Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Hittner. Owner of the Cotton Blossom for fifteen years, since the death of the original owner, Hittner acts in the company and takes charge of the business affairs. Before joining the showboat troop, he was a professional baseball player in summer and a stage hand in winter, and later a theater manager.

READ THIS FIRST:
Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, starts out on a moonlit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival in their home town of Elliston, W. Va.

The two run their car into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnapped by bandits, but quickly rescued by Jack Stuart, ex-serviceman, just back from overseas, who returns her to her home.

It is the old, old story revamped. Jack stops for a visit and remains to wed the lovely Jill.

Three years pass into the discard, finding the young couple the happy parents of a pair of twin boys and a girl. Life has been very kind to them, despite hard times.

Then comes the Great Change. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tungsten mine on a tax title and sell a fourth interest for $100,000 to Pat Sweeney, millionaire from Chicago, and the father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike," a typical flapper, but a "square shooter" as even her enemies admit.

Jill Stuart and Mike clash at their first meeting, when the wife thinks "her Jack" is too much interested in Mike, who, sensing her animosity, takes pains to feed the "green monster."

Their wealth to the Stuarts and Tony Justin, seems limitless, so they start in at once on a spending orgy. Almost before they have begun, or so it seems to them, the Stuarts have frittered away more than $12,000.

This is the cause of their first quarrel of importance. Others follow in quick succession, along with the parties. Gone are the old happy, contented days. Wrangles and argument have taken their place. Easy money! Instead of joy, it seems to have brought the seeds of distrust that soon grow into poisonous weeds of misery and unhappiness.

Guided by the unknown in their early married life now threaten the very foundations of their home.

Jack comes home, after spending the night in the hospital, where he has submitted to a blood transfusion operation. Through misunderstanding, he believes that Jill has been away all night, and accuses her of spending the time with a dancing professor. And Jill, in turn, hints that Mike has kept him from his family. Jack leaves the flat.

CHAPTER XXVI
The muscles of his legs suddenly began to ache. Before he had reached the end of the block he had to stop. A convenient tree provided something for him to lean against, and that was just what Jack most needed at that moment.

Not only was he in need of physical support, but his senses were calling for the tonic of a human sympathy. He wanted somebody to pity him. It was the Devil of Chance that sent him Mike Sweeney in her powerful roadster.

"Jack Stuart! Why, you're ill—you're—"

She had stopped her car at the curb as she saw him stagger up to the tree. Then, catching sight of his face, pale and drawn, she threw open the door, leaped out, and rushed over to him.

"Jack!" she cried out again. "What are you doing—trying to kill yourself? They shouldn't have let you out of the hospital yet! Good Lord! You ought to be in bed this instant! C'mon, get right in that car, now, and I'll take you back where you belong!"

Jack Stuart was in no condition, physically or mentally, to argue the question. A terrible weakness, a mental and body languor, was gripping him, a languor it seemed to him, of soul and brain and heart. He wanted—oh, he wanted something—somebody just to lean on. He wanted—to cry!

And he cried—right there! Not loudly, nor passionately, but just weakly—like a great baby, whimperingly. Mike Sweeney seemed intuitively to understand, as she helped him across the green grass sward to the open door of her car. He dropped into the low, cushioned seat, and there quietly, unostentatiously, and for the first time in his life, Jack Stuart fainted!

But Mike didn't know it—then. She pushed the door shut, ran around to the left side and squeezed in behind the big steering wheel. Mindful of the fact that she had a sick man for a passenger, she got under way without the usual accompanying roar. Then she looked at her passenger, observed that his eyes were shut, that his mouth was a little open and that he was resting in the deep seat with all the grace and poise of a big sack of meal.

"Poor boy," she whispered to herself, commiseratingly, "what could they have been thinking of at that hospital to let him out in such a condition? I wonder if he has been home yet? Mother Martha said his wife never even telephoned to ask—"

Her lips closed in a grim line, and she stepped on the accelerator. The heavy roadster jumped ahead like a live thing. Neither to the right nor the left did she look for the straight run of a mile. Then she slowed down for the turn into the hospital grounds.

She looked again at her passenger. His eyes were still closed, his mouth still open. Something, a slackness of the mouth, perhaps, drew her attention closer. She reached over with her right hand and grasped his left wrist, being supinely across his leg. The eyes remained closed. The lower lip sagged a little lower.

"Jack!" she cried out in sudden alarm, and shook his arm. There was no response, although she saw by the rise and fall of his chest that he was breathing. How fortunate that she had found him when she did, and had brought him to the hospital.

"Jack Stuart! Why you're ill!"

rushed to the operating room. Alas, poor Jill. . . Circumstances where the same two doctors who had performed on him the afternoon before went to work on him again.

"I suppose I ought to notify his wife," said Mike, when word was sent down a few minutes later that the patient had recovered consciousness and had been put to bed, where he had already fallen asleep. The Mother Superior nodded.

"Yes," she acquiesced, "the wife should be told, although she seemed to show no anxiety last night and this forenoon, never even telephoning to inquire about him."

"Mrs. Stuart just went out," came Clara's musical tones over the wire in response to Mike's call. "Mr. Stuart came in, stayed just a few minutes, and then went out again, not an hour ago. Now she's gone out again, too."

"Gone out again?" repeated the curious Mike. "Was not Mrs. Stuart home when he came in?"

"She must have been," replied the nurse girl, as if puzzled over this self-evident fact, "although I didn't hear her come in last night. But I heard their voices in their room. Then I saw him go out as I was in the hall when he left."

"Well, tell Mrs. Stuart when she comes in that her husband is in the hospital," instructed Mike, and rang off.

In the meantime what of Jill? She was left sitting on the bed, it will be recalled, when Jack strode from the room.

But she didn't sit on the bed very long. When she heard the hall door slam she rose quickly, made a swift toilet, and hurriedly departed in the wake of the man who, she now realized, she had accused wrongfully.

She wanted to tell him how sorry she was. She wanted to prove to him, also, that he had wronged her in thinking she had failed to come to the hospital because she had been out with—oh, how could Jack ever have thought so vile a thing of her? But she would prove to him—

She pushed the door shut, ran around to the left side and squeezed in behind the big steering wheel. Mindful of the fact that she had a sick man for a passenger, she got under way without the usual accompanying roar. Then she looked at her passenger, observed that his eyes were shut, that his mouth was a little open and that he was resting in the deep seat with all the grace and poise of a big sack of meal.

Her heart sank. Mr. Green was the one person who could substantiate her claim of having driven in before 7 o'clock. Her alibi—but surely Jack would believe her. She hurried away in the direction of the Central drug store. Maybe Jack would be there.

Jack was not there, but Ann McGuffey and Billie Browne, both of them her friends, were there, and both of them were loaded to the ears with curiosity.

"Oh, Jill!" erupted hissing Billie her eyes shining and her lip working overtime. "It must be grand to have a hero for a husband! But, my dear, you are a thimble thing to let that natty Mike Thweezy steal him the first day he is a hero!"

Jill stared at her in dumb wonderment. What did the girl mean? "Steal who?" she queried, finally, in a small, weak voice. Then Ann McGuffey, noting the state of Jill's nerves, took it upon herself to explain matters.

"Why, Billie and I saw Mike driving on Hamilton avenue half an hour ago in that roadster of hers, and your Jack was with her. We thought it odd, considering the fact that only last night he underwent an operation, giving three pints of blood to save Sister Monica. He should be in the hospital instead of running or riding around. What made him leave the hospital so quick?"

Thereupon Jill told the two how she had just heard about Sister Monica's accident from Jack himself, and how he had left the apartment, believing her guilty of having been out all night. She also told how her possible alibi had been frustrated.

It was then that Jill got the complete story from an eyewitness of Jack Stuart's return from his search, with the unconscious form of Sister Monica, of Mike's part in driving the limousine, and of how Jack saved the sister's life the second time within an hour by giving his blood in a transfusion operation. She concluded by telling of the hospital scenes.

"Why don't you give that Mike Thweezy perthon a big dole of rat poison, Jill?" asked Billie Browne, casually, as she twisted her head around in an effort to see whether the little horseshoe nail in her new silk stocking was growing.

Jill laughed because she couldn't help it, not because she felt that way. But the things Billie said, and the way she said them, would, as Ann McGuffey declared, "make a sick horse laugh."

"Why should I give anybody rat poison, Billie?" she asked, just for the sake of hearing Billie talk. "I didn't say 'anybody' said

Billie, good-naturedly. "I think that Mike Thweezy perthon, who is my idea of nobody!"

"You're wrong there, Billie, distinctly wrong!" protested Ann McGuffey, in her quick, incisive manner of speaking. "You can't correctly call Mike Sweeney a 'nobody.' She's a live wire if there ever was one, and she asks odds of no man or woman!"

"Yes," agreed Jill, refusing to scratch a rival whose back was turned. "While I don't care so much for the lady in person, yet Mike Sweeney is a square shooter,

I believe—one who tries to play fair!"

"Well, then," she said, demurely, "if you don't want to give her a rat poison, give her the huthank. There'll be wantin' to give her back theon enough!"
